Course Description:

This course will address issues in the area of “social structure and the individual” by exploring microsocial processes within macrosocial structures to assess the outcomes of individual actions (House & Mortimer, 1990). Utilizing the sociological imagination we will explore individual motivation for actions and how the social structure influences individual and collective decisions. Moreover, we will apply a critical lens to the debate over “Structure vs. Agency.” Readings and lectures will focus on issues within social psychology, political and social structures, organizations and institutions, and social movements.

Course Objective:

The overall objective of this course is to understand the link between individual lives (agency) and larger social forces (structure). Can we really exercise free-will? Or do societal structures constrain us more than we realize? And assuming that we can find answers to such questions, what will we do with this information? Implicit in the quest to comprehend the link between structure and agency, I think, is the desire for positive social change. As a trained critical sociologist, I am not content with simply understanding the philosophical underpinnings of ‘I’ and ‘we’ and how ‘I’ and ‘we’ interact. I seek social justice and equality in my work, teaching, and behavior. And I suspect that many of you do as well. Thus, the other major objective of this course is an attempt to apply this acquired knowledge to collective action that will affect positive social change.

Note: During the semester you will have the opportunity to volunteer with a community service or social movement organization. By the end of the term, it is my hope that you will experience and internalize collective goals, deepen your understanding of meaningful work, and see the value in voluntary work that explores solutions to real social problems.

Textbook (s):

Eitzen, D. Stanley and Kenneth Stewart. 2007. Solutions to Social Problems from the Bottom Up: Successful Social Movements. 1st ed. Boston, MA: Pearson Education.

Supplemental readings will be available on Laulima or handed out in class.

Requirements:

1. Attendance: 20%

Attendance is mandatory and will be taken each class period. How else can we discuss the readings, see the videos, and interact with each other? We will meet a total of 45 times throughout the semester. Thus, attendance grades will be calculated by taking the number of times you have attended class and dividing it by 45.

2. Weekly Reflections: 20%

All readings should be completed prior to the date reflected on the class schedule. Throughout the semester you will complete 13 reflections on the both the readings and concepts covered in class for the week. Reflections should show me that you have read and critically thought about the material. They should be 1-2 pages in length, typed, double space, 12-point font, 1-inch margins. Reflections will be graded on a 3-point scale (low satisfactory, medium satisfactory, high satisfactory). All reflections must be turned in at the beginning of class on the due date (see class schedule below).

3. Discussion Leader: 25%

Each student will be required to present one (1) article/chapter to the class during the semester. To facilitate this, you must create a Power Point presentation or produce a hard-copy outline to pass out to each student in class. You should plan for your presentation to last roughly 10-20 minutes. It is highly recommended that the presenting student utilize multi-media (videos, images, audio, etc.) and outside sources where necessary. The more creative, the better!

4. Research Project: 35%

There is no final exam in this course. Instead, you will be required to turn in a final research paper. This project will be graded for completeness, integration of course literature with fieldwork, and organization. You must interview four people for this paper. Here are the major components of the final project:

a. Interview Preparation: 5%

In preparation for the field component of the class (interviews), you are required to submit potential interview questions and a list of potential subjects (at least 4 people) to me in class on 2/9/15. I understand that some of you may not have taken a Research Methods course, so I will set aside some time in class to go over the basics. But for now, I want you to consider what kind of questions would paint a thorough picture of one's overall perception of their own free will and structural constraints. What kind of follow-up questions can get to the heart of what she/he is trying to communicate? How will you ask questions in order to remain a "neutral observer," etc.?

b. Introduction: 6%

The introduction section to any research paper sets the stage for the entire project. This section should address why you are doing this research, what you researched, how you researched it, and some preliminary findings.

c. Literature Review: 6%

This section should address what other authors/researchers are saying about structure and agency. Some of the literature will support your findings, while some will not—this is okay and should be discussed in your Results/Findings section. You must use at least three peer-reviewed articles (peer-reviewed articles from the syllabus as well as any chapter in the textbook are acceptable) and at least one additional reference for your project. References should be listed properly (ASA Guidelines) in your bibliography section.

d. Methods: 6%

This section should detail how you collected your (qualitative) data. Interviews: face-to-face, phone, email, etc.? What was your sampling method (to be covered in class)? Who did you interview? What was their race/ethnicity, gender, political affiliations, occupation, immigrant status, age range, educational level, etc.?

e. Results/Findings: 6%

This section should thoroughly detail the results of your research. Were there any common answers to specific questions? What were they? Were some common answers only shared by a similar demographic? What does the existing literature say about these common themes? Be sure to include specific quotes from your research subjects (it is highly recommended that you voice record your interviews).

f. Discussion/Conclusion: 6%

Your Discussion/Conclusion section should reiterate why you did this research, what your findings were, and how your results did or did not match up with the existing literature. Additionally, you should identify some of the shortcomings of your research project and recommendations for further research. This portion of your project will be of special importance in your final grade as it should illustrate your scholarly growth throughout the semester.

*Optional: Service Learning Program

You have the option to participate in the Service Learning Program at UH for the semester. If you chose to do so you will NOT have to turn in a Research Project. There are important differences in this option, however. You will be required to fulfill 20 hours of volunteer service throughout the semester and turn in a short reflection paper. Benefits include experience in your field of work, strengthening your resume, and receiving automatic credit for 35% of your overall grade in the course. For more information visit: <http://servicelearning.socialsciences.hawaii.edu/index.html>

*NOTE: Late assignments will NOT be accepted, therefore, if you cannot make it to class for any reason, be sure to email me your assignment by the start time of class or by the due date/time reflected on the class schedule.

Grading Scale:

100—90% = A+ — A-
89—80% = B+ — B-
79—70% = C+ — C-
69—60% = D+ — D-
59—0% = F

Academic Dishonesty:

Any form of cheating or plagiarism will not be tolerated. Any student caught cheating or plagiarizing will receive an automatic zero (0) for the assignment in question. Not understanding plagiarism will not be an acceptable excuse. Please familiarize yourself with the UHM guidelines and penalties for academic dishonesty, including cheating and plagiarism. Expectations:

As with any learning experience, your level of engagement will determine what you get out of this course. I encourage you to make the most of this opportunity by actively participating in class, keeping up with the assigned readings, and reflecting on your own experiences. And, ask questions! If there is anything that you do not understand or that you are having trouble with, please ask for help. I want to make sure that you are learning the material and learning how to think about the material in a sociological manner.

Throughout the course, some of the topics will be sensitive, so I expect that we approach these classes with respect. While each person is entitled to an opinion, it is crucial that our discussions remain respectful. In other words, always engage in debates about ideas, never engage in personal attacks. I reserve the right to ask a student to leave the class if their comments are disrespectful or inappropriate in any way.

Cell phones need to be off or on silent AND put away during class. When you are in class be “in-class” and not somewhere else. Please do not work on assignments from other classes while in my class. Lastly, BE ON TIME! Again, I reserve the right to ask students who are being disrespectful to leave the class.

Communications:

E-mail is a good way to reach me. Monday through Friday I generally respond within 24 hours. If you e-mail me after 5pm on Friday, I may not respond until Monday morning. Sometimes questions and concerns come up that are best discussed in person. If it turns out you have such questions or concerns, we’ll find a time to meet—either during office hours or at another mutually convenient time. Lastly, I would like to avoid receiving e-mails with questions that can be answered with a close reading of the syllabus.

Facing Challenges?

If you have things going on in your life which will affect your ability to do your best, then let me know as soon as possible—don’t wait! You may not be responsible for your circumstances, but you are responsible for letting me know you need help or support.

Disabilities

Please notify me if you have any particular needs. UHM strives to maintain a barrier-free environment so that students with disabilities can fully access classes, programs, services and other campus activities. If you need any assistance please contact the KOKUA Program at 808.956.7511 or you can visit their website at:

Syllabus:

The instructor reserves the right to make changes to the syllabus at any time. If I make changes, I will send out an email informing you of the amendment. It is your responsibility to check your email for announcements, updates, and general class correspondence.

My goal is to keep pace with the class schedule, but throughout the semester there may be times when we explore topics that require more or less time than I have scheduled for them. We should feel free to explore these issues fully without the anxiety of having to keep strictly to the schedule.
