In celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the sociology department at the University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa and to commemorate the pioneering work of local students and scholars, Social Process in Hawai‘i will publish a special issue, Social Process in Hawai‘i: Celebrating 100 years of Local Studies.

We invite the following to submit proposals for papers for this special issue to be published in 2020:

- Professionally trained and independent scholars
- Advanced undergraduate and graduate students
- Librarians
- Archivists
- Community members
- Activists

Papers may address any topic related to community studies of Hawai‘i including but not limited to:

- Studies of local communities, especially those that place Hawai‘i in a global context
- Activism related to environmental, social, or political movements
- Territorial history, especially topics related gender and sexuality, and the social, political, and economic concerns of Kānaka Maoli
- Education, especially the role of the University of Hawai‘i in educational and social policy and practices

Please submit abstracts of no more than 250 words by October 1, 2018 to: social@hawaii.edu

For more information please contact:

John Rosa
University of Hawai‘i rosajohn@hawaii.edu

Lori Pierce
DePaul University
lpierce3@depaul.edu