CEO of Kaneohe Ranch Mitch D’Olier Speaks to PUBA 662 Class

Date: January 2008

Mitch D’Olier visited Strategies of Change - Leaders and Leadership (PUBA 622) on January 23rd. Currently the CEO of Kaneohe Ranch, Mr. D’Olier has lots of experience with private sector projects that require early and sustained involvement with diverse local communities. He shared reflections on the sources of passion for what he does and the process he goes through to try to make a project work for a community and for his organization. When asked what he brings as a leader he named energy, enthusiasm, a team, and, perhaps most important, a willingness to listen and learn.

Mr. D’Olier is one of a diverse set of leaders who visit the class during the semester. The course focuses on understanding what leaders do that works or doesn’t work in terms of making an impact on a complex public issue. Robbie Alm, a well-known community leader, and Dick Pratt teach PUBA 622.
