In Preparation

Steinhoff, Patricia G. The Japanese Red Army: the Reality behind the Myths. (tentative title). This will correct misunderstandings about the activities of the JRA in the Middle East and tell much of the inside story based on the Japanese sources and my own extensive interviewing and trial observations.

Steinhoff, Patricia G. Deadly Ideology: The Red Army Faction in Japan and its Impact. This will be the updated English version of my Japanese book on the subject. It is mostly written but requires some updating and the inclusion of new material about the aftermath of the protest era of the 1960s-early 1970s in Japan. It will cover only what happened in Japan.

Slater, David, Patricia G. Steinhoff, and Daishiro Nomiya, eds., Emergent Politics in Japan. This is a collection of papers, mostly by young scholars, on various forms of alternative politics being practiced in contemporary Japan by social movement groups, youth collectives, and community unions. Proposal to be submitted to University of Hawaii Press.

Bestor, Theodore, Patricia Steinhoff, and Vickey Bestor, eds., Doing Fieldwork in Japan, volume II. This book is in the active planning stage. We plan to keep our existing volume in print but to produce a second volume that will highlight new research approaches and contributions by younger scholars who were not represented in the first volume (European scholars and native speakers of Japanese). We are currently identifying potential contributors and the University of Hawaii Press is interested in publishing this to complement the first volume, which they published in 2003.

Steinhoff, Patricia, ed., How Was the Battle of Okinawa Covered by the American Press? This was originally prepared for publication in Okinawa by Ryokurindō Shoten, as the American volume of a two volume Japanese and American comparative study to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the battle. Publication was suspended because of copyright and royalty issues, but the project was later revived and may be produced as an e-book by the University of Hawaii Center for Okinawan Studies.

Websites Designed and Developed

- 2001 www.takazawa.hawaii.edu. (with programmer Yanfeng Li) Website for the Kōji Takazawa Collection at the University of Hawaii, developed with a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Bilingual Japanese and English website with MS Access database, built in Frontpage and programmed in ASP, contains bilingual bibliographic displays plus bilingual index-based search utilities. I designed the website, did all database development, and developed the bilingual search indexes. Yanfeng Li converted bilingual database from Twinbridge to Unicode and did all Frontpage website development and ASP programming for the original website. Programmer Anthony Ipkin Wong re-programmed the site in asp.net in 2005.
- 2002 www.jsn.hawaii.edu. (with Harry Partika) Website for the Japan Sociologists Network. English language website with MS Access database, built with Macromedia Dreamweaver Ultradev 4 and programmed in Cold Fusion. I designed website and built it in Dreamweaver Ultradev 4. Harry Partika programmed it in Cold Fusion mess and improved the site's functionality.
- 2002 <http://www2.hawaii.edu/~steinhof>. My personal academic website. I built the website with Macromedia Dreamweaver Ultradev 4.

- 2003 <http://www.crosscurrents.hawaii.edu>. Cross Currents, a bilingual Japanese and English multimedia educational website developed at the University of Hawaii by Prof. Linda Menton (UH), Prof. Colin Macdonald (UH), Prof. Masako Notoji (University of Tokyo), Prof. Masanao Takeyama (Musashi Kogyo University) and myself under the sponsorship of CULCON and the Japan-U.S. Friendship Commission, with oversight from a bi-national working group co-chaired by Mr. Toshiaki Ogasawara and myself. Building on non-database-driven prototype prepared by others, Colin Macdonald, programmer Leslie Williams and I developed a working prototype of the database-driven website in fall 2002 and programmer Anthony Ipkin Wong developed extensive additional functions for the site in 2003-2006 with the assistance of programmer James Wang. The site has been tested for classroom use at the high school and college levels.
- 2004-5 <http://japandirectory.socialsciences.hawaii.edu>. Data collection website for Japan Directory Project. Website developed at the University of Hawaii with programmer Anthony Ipkin Wong to collect data from Japanese Studies programs, libraries, specialists and doctoral candidates for the third edition of the Directory of Japan Specialists and Japanese Studies Institutions in the United States and Canada and analysis of the current state of Japanese Studies in the United States and Canada.
- 2011 Data collection website for fourth Japan Directory Project. Website adapted from previous one at the University of Hawaii with programmers Phan Thu Trang and Skol Watanawongskul to collect data from Japanese Studies programs, libraries, specialists and doctoral candidates for the fourth edition of the Directory of Japan Specialists and Japanese Studies Institutions in the United States and Canada and analysis of the current state of Japanese Studies in the United States and Canada. This site is no longer public although it still resides online. The url has been switched to the display website listed below and the site is only accessible through a development url.
- 2012 <http://japandirectory.socialsciences.hawaii.edu>. Searchable display website for the contents of the fourth edition of the Directory of Japan Specialists and Japanese Studies Institutions in the United States and Canada. Produced with programmers Phan Thu Trang and Skol Watanawongskul, with assistance from web designer Kristyn Martin. I designed all the website search and display functions, provided all data content and text, and designed the final visual display.
